Patient Guides | Videos | Support Tools

Provide patients with surgical information from the source they trust most
...their own surgeon

The American College of Surgeons offers a digital patient education service to educate patients about their surgical procedures and acquire the skills needed for their optimal recovery.

What You Get

The service delivers point of care surgical education to help patients understand the procedure, make informed decisions, and confidently manage their entire perioperative experience from prep to home care.

Upon enrolling, you will receive a "Patient Education Toolkit", a website at a unique website address (URL) that is personalized with your hospital name and loaded with helpful resources.

The Toolkit offers the entire surgical prep series as well as patient education from federal government health agencies and institutes.

Patient Education Content

From the American College of Surgeons:

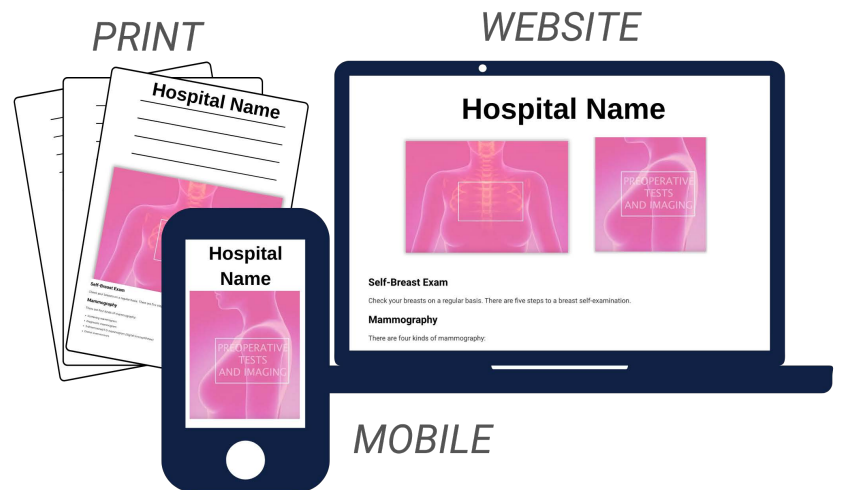

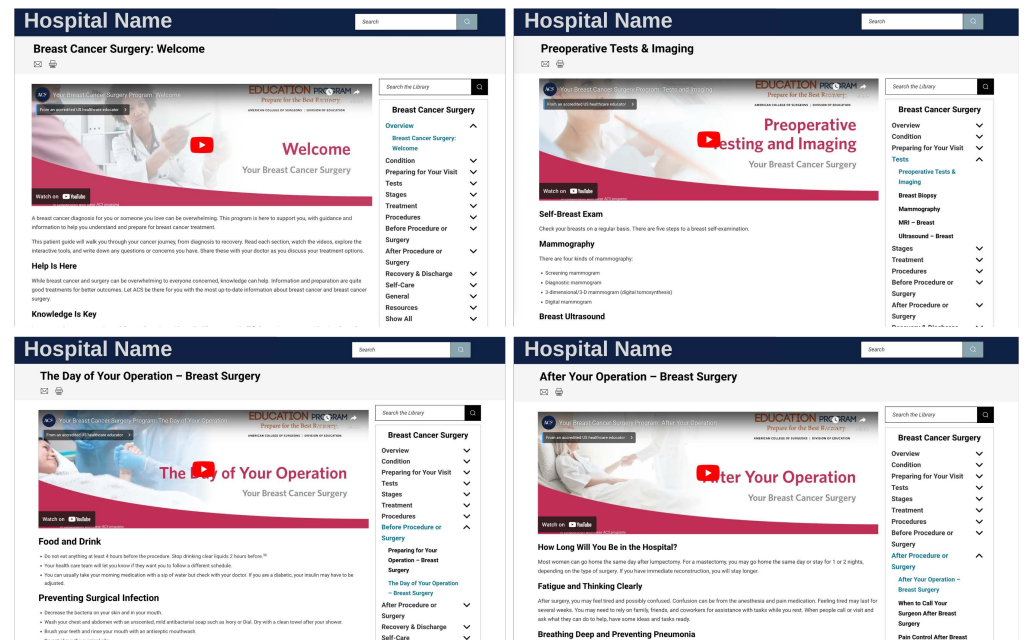

- Breast anatomy
- Cancer and staging
- Preoperative testing and biopsy
- Pre- and postoperative preparation, smoking cessation, procedure options
- Complication prevention
- Postoperative exercises, wound care, discharge and home care
- Skills checklists
- Additional therapies (e.g. medical and radiation oncology, complimentary medicine)
- Treatment summary and survivorship care plan
